

Contents

List of tables	xiii
Acknowledgements	xv
1 A framework for scientific psychopathology	1
Introduction	1
Historical background	2
Mental derangement or mental illness?	2
Moral treatment	3
The modern era: brain or mind?	3
The twentieth century and science	5
The stress-diathesis model	6
What is abnormal?	6
Statistical infrequencies	7
Violation of norms	7
Maladaptive behaviour	8
Personal distress	8
Comment	8
Summary	9
2 Classification and paradigms of abnormal behaviour	11
Introduction	11

2.1	The ICD and DSM	12
	The DSM axes	12
	Criticisms of ICD and DSM	14
	Reliability	15
	Validity	15
	Categorical versus dimensional approaches	16
	Paradigms of scientific psychopathology	17
	Crossing boundaries in psychopathology	19
	Summary	20

3 The nature of schizophrenia

23

Introduction	23
Clinical picture	23
Onset	26
Course	27
Factors associated with good outcome	27
Factors associated with poor outcome	28
Epidemiology	28
Subtypes of schizophrenia	29
Four subtypes	29
Positive and negative symptoms	30
The three syndrome model	30
Two phases of illness	30
Treatment	34
Summary	35

4 Aetiology of schizophrenia

37

Introduction	37
Biological approaches	38
Genetic factors	38
Brain structure and schizophrenia	40
Brain function and schizophrenia	42
Psychological approaches	44
Psychodynamic explanations	44
Family theories	45
Expressed emotion (EE)	46
The cognitive-neuropsychological approach	47
Summary	48

5 The nature of affective disorders	51
Introduction	51
Depression	52
Major depressive illness: the clinical picture	52
Minor depressive states: the clinical picture	56
Mood disorders associated with childbirth	57
Mania: the clinical picture	58
Hypomania	59
Bipolar affective disorder	59
Epidemiology of the affective disorders	62
Treatment	62
Prognosis	64
Summary	64
6 Aetiology of the affective disorders	67
Introduction	67
Psychological approaches	68
Early childhood experiences	68
Psychosocial stress factors	68
Learned helplessness/hopelessness	69
Cognitive factors	70
Biological approaches	72
Genetic research	72
Neurotransmitter abnormalities	73
Summary	75
7 The anxiety disorders and obsessional states	79
Introduction	79
The experience of anxiety	80
Phobias	81
Specific phobias	81
Social phobia	82
Agoraphobia and panic disorder	82
Generalised anxiety	85
Adjustment reaction	85
Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD)	85
Obsessive-compulsive disorder (OCD)	87
Treatment	88
Summary	88

8 Aetiology of anxiety disorders	91
Introduction	91
Psychological theories	92
Psychodynamic approaches	92
Conditioning theories	92
Two-process theory	93
Preparedness	94
Cognitive approaches	95
Biological mechanisms	96
The evolutionary basis of anxiety	96
Genetic mechanisms	97
Neurotransmitter dysfunction	97
A stress-diathesis model	98
Summary	98
9 Eating disorders	101
Introduction	101
Anorexia nervosa	102
Clinical features	102
Treatment	104
Prognosis	104
Bulimia nervosa	107
Clinical features	107
Treatment	108
Prognosis	108
Summary	110
10 Vulnerability and perpetuating factors in eating disorders	113
Introduction	113
Vulnerability factors	113
Perpetuating factors	117
Summary	118
11 Criticisms of psychopathology	121
Introduction	121
Mental illness does not exist	122
Szasz's 'myth of mental illness'	122
Comment	123

Mental illness as a deliberate response 124

Early psycho-social models 124

Comment 125

Disease, syndrome or symptoms? 126

The right level of enquiry 126

Comment 127

Categorical versus dimensional classification 127

A mental health continuum? 127

Too much or too little science? 128

Summary 129

12 The future of psychopathology 131

Introduction 131

Unravelling brain-behaviour interactions 132

More eclecticism 133

Genetic mechanisms and testing 133

New treatments 134

Greater use of imaging techniques 134

Care for people with a mental illness 135

Summary 136

13 Three research reviews 137

Introduction 137

International pilot study of schizophrenia 138

Treatment of depression collaborative research programme 140

Effect of 'apparent control' on panic attacks 142

14 Study aids 145

Improving your essay writing skills 145

Practice essay 1 146

Practice essay 2 150

Final points 153

Glossary 155

Bibliography 161

Index 171